22nd-26th April, 2013 Yokohama JAPAN

Monday, April 22, 2013
Bulletin Number 1

Editors: Rich Colker, Barry Rigal

Welcome to the 2013 Yeh Bros Cup

Stage One of the Yeh Bros Cup features a 10-round, two-day Swiss Teams qualifier with 10-board matches, imps converted to Victory Points using the 10-Board WBF scale. The top 15 teams plus the number one pre-seed (the Yeh's team) will qualify for the KO stage. The draws for the first two Swiss qualifying matches have been pre-determined (see page 2). Draws for subsequent rounds will be Swiss, one round delayed.

In the KO stage, qualifiers will be divided into two 8-team brackets. The top eight seeded teams will start in the upper bracket and play a straight knockout, losers dropping into the lower bracket. The winner of the upper bracket will play in the final with a 6.5 imp carryover.

The second eight seeds will start in the lower bracket and be eliminated with a loss. In Match 2 in the lower bracket each Match 1 survivor will play one of the four losing teams from the upper bracket. In Match 3 the two losing teams from the upper bracket will join the four lower-bracket survivors to play two three-way matches, the two winners advancing. In Match 4 the loser from Match 3 in the upper bracket will join the two lower-bracket winners in a three-way, the winner advancing to the final and the two losers playing off for third place.

All KO matches will consist of 32 boards (two 16-board segments) while the final and third-place playoff will be 48 boards (three 16-board segments). There will be a Consolation Swiss (Swiss Plate) on Wednesday and Thursday for Yeh Bros Cup non-qualifiers, teams eliminated in Rounds 1 and 2 of the knockouts, and four newcomer teams (see pages 2-3). Also, an Open Pairs will begin on Thursday night, continuing on Friday, for 50 pairs, two or three from each Open team not still in the KOs or Swiss Plate (see page 3).

- The top three pairs from each section together with the host pair (Mr.Yeh and his partner) will advance to the final, for a total of 10 pairs.

This will be a 5-table Howell. Scoring is by Barometer IMPs.

Open Pairs Consolation: Friday, April 26, 14:00 - 17:30

This will be an 11-table Howell.

5. Procedure

5-1 Computer dealt hands will be used throughout the event.

5-2 Screens will be used throughout the event.

5-3 Each pair is required to bring two convention cards to the table.

- Hum systems are not permitted in any event. Period.
- Brown Sticker Conventions are permitted only in the Knockout and Final/Playoff. (This restriction may be waived in any match by agreement of both teams.)
- BSC users are required to provide adequate defenses.
- Players are required to provide a full explanation of all conventional calls as well as any indirect implications of their use that may not be immediately obvious to the opponents. (Note: providing just the name of a convention is not sufficient.)
- All teams must submit convention cards of their players one month in advance, which will be posted on the tournament website. Players are required to alert their artificial bids at the table, and upon inquiry write down a clear and complete explanation together with its implications. Simply referring to a convention's name may not be enough since some names have become generic terms encompassing many different versions. The requirement to play a natural/standard system can be waived by the opposing team by mutual agreement; the mechanism of doing so will be announced at the Captain's meeting. The pair playing against Mr. Yeh will be asked to play a natural, Standard or Precision system consistent with the JCBL Class C convention chart (see page 7) and, if necessary, to have a separately filled-out convention card.

5-4 Time Limit

10-boards: 1 hour and 20 minutes

16-boards: 2 hours and 10 minutes

6. Tie Breaking

6-1 Swiss Movement

The higher IMP quotient advances. If still tied, the Total Point quotient in all matches played by the tied teams will determine who advances. If still tied, the winner will be determined by random draw.

After round 10, ties on VPs will be broken in the following order:

- (a) higher IMP quotient in all matches played by the tying teams
- (b) greater number of IMPs obtained in the match between the tying teams (should it have occurred)
- (c) higher Total Points obtained in the match between the tying teams (should it have occurred)
- (d) higher Total Point quotient in all matches played by the tying teams
- (e) Successive one-board playoffs until a winner is determined.

6-2 Knockout Phase

The team with the higher Total Points advances. If still tied, the number of boards won (a difference of 10 points is considered a winning board, even though no IMPs are gained). Random draw if still tied.

6-3 Final and Playoff

The team with the higher Total Points wins. If still tied, the number of boards won (a difference of 10 points is considered a winning board, even though no IMPs are gained). If the tie remains, the tied teams will play two-board sudden-death matches until a winner emerges.

6-4 Pairs

For any stage of the competition, the pair with the greater number of boards on which they scored positive IMPs will be ranked higher. Random draw if the tie remains.

7. Alert Procedure

Standard Alert procedures with screens will be used. In cases when screens are used, questions and answers should be written on the memo pads provided. Otherwise, the Director may not accept any complaints about misinformation later on.

8. Seating

Teams play according to the schedules as posted. The team listed first on the line-up sheet is designated as the Home Team, the other team as the Visiting Team. The Home Team sits N/S in the Open Room and E/W in the Closed Room. The Visiting Team sits N/S in the Closed Room and E/W in the Open Room. There will be blind seating for all matches in the Qualifying stage (except that the team playing against Mr. Yeh will have the right to decide which pair will play at Mr. Yeh's table) and in the Swiss Plate. Line-ups for Round One must be submitted by 9:20 am. Subsequent line-ups are to be completed and submitted within 5 minutes of the official finishing time of the previous match. All seating rights in the first three rounds of the Knock-out stage and in the Swiss Plate will be determined by random draw (coin flip). Prior to the start of the final and third-place playoff, the team captains will draw to determine choice of seating rights. The winner of the draw may choose to sit first in any of the three stanzas, then the choice alternates. Team captains are required to submit their line-up within 5 minutes of the scheduled finishing time of the previous round.

Happy Birthday to Sue

Everybody knows that the Yeh Bros and NEC tournament wouldn't run smoothly without an efficient TD. Everybody also knows that our chief TD, Richard Grenside, would not run smoothly without his wife Sue. Since Sue is about to celebrate her birthday today, April 22nd (we have no idea what number it is and wouldn't dare ask), Richard has asked us to thank her for all the work at the tournament and wants everybody to give her a birthday kiss when they see her.

A word of thanks from the Pharon team

Pharon is a financial services company based in Canterbury, England. It was founded by Roger O'Shea 40 years ago. Five years ago Roger took up bridge and three years ago Pharon (who also sponsor the London Philharmonic Orchestra) decided to sponsor the English Senior bridge team. This year they have extended their sponsorship to assist a team to come to Japan for the NEC Cup and the Yeh Bros teams. Although Roger often plays with the Hacketts, the sponsorship is unusual in that none of the sponsors from Pharon play on the team. All the members of the Pharon teams here would like to thank the company for their continued support of bridge.

Convention Regulations for Side (Pair) Games

3♥	Pass	4♥	All Pass

Defending 4♥ Grue led the ♣A and shifted to the ♠K. Declarer misguessed the ♥Q and went down without a fight. Hampson came much closer to making; he won the spade lead, guessed hearts, then gave up a spade without drawing the last trump. South cashed the two spade winners and played the third heart, so Hampson ruffed, took the diamond finesse, cashed the ♦A (good!), crossed to the ♦Q and exited with a low club. This line brings in 10 tricks if North has the ♣AQ (he wins the ♣Q but is endplayed to lead away from his ♣A while declarer still has a trump in each hand; and yes, South can prevent this position from arising by playing the fourth spade or shifting to a club, but let's not get picky).

Yaniv Zack reached 4♥ as well, on a different auction.

	1♣	Dbf	1♥(♠)
Dbf.	2♣	2♥	Pass

The defenders led the ♣Q, ducked all around, a spade to the king, ducked, a spade to the ace, and now Zack passed the ♥10 successfully. Then he repeated the heart finesse, took the diamond finesse, cashed the ♦A and ♦Q, and cross-ruffed his remaining trumps. He ended up taking six trump tricks, three diamond tricks and the ♠A.

Had South covered the ♥10 with the queen there is a route to success, but hats off to anyone who found it. Lead a diamond. If North plays low put in the jack, draw a second round of trumps with the jack, and play a second diamond, ducking North's king (endplaying him to lead a club), and you now have an extra winner and just enough entries to unscramble them. Equally elegant, if North puts up the ♦K on the first round to avoid the endplay you win, cash the ♥J, ruff a club, cash the ♥K and lead a diamond to the queen. In the four-card ending dummy has a card in each suit, you hold two spades and two diamonds, as does South. You lead the ♣K and pitch a spade, forcing North to win and return a club to exercise a suicide squeeze on his partner.

And yes, the defenders could have broken up the tension of the endgame by leading a club (or a top diamond) at trick two, and later covering the ♥10, but this is still a spectacular deal.

China ZH and Indonesia were both on the cusp of qualifying for the top group, but one bad match could have dropped them into the Swiss. Not yet nail-biting time; there would be plenty of opportunity for that later on.

Zhao bought an exceptionally poor dummy in 3♣x. The defenders took pity on him and never played trumps (West in particular had an easy trump play at trick two after a heart lead, when the ♥A had dropped the king), but -300 was not a great position with 4♠ so awkward. Zhuang received a diamond lead and ducked it to the queen. Back came a club and he won in dummy, led a low trump to the queen and ace, and led a heart to the nine and king. A second club came back, so he won in hand and played a third club, planning to pitch a diamond and cross-ruff. When South could ruff in, he was left with an inevitable trump and diamond loser. Had declarer taken the heart finesse by running the eight, covered by South, before playing the club, he would have been better placed. He leads out the ♠J, then the ♠10, which South must duck or declarer can draw trumps now, cash the club winner, then take the heart finesse. When both trumps are ducked, declarer changes tack and plays the ♦A, ruffs a heart to hand, and leads the ♣Q to pitch dummy's diamond, leaving South with just the master trump.

Just for the record, 4♠ was made on four occasions from the East seat, Gu Ling, Gao Fei, Fredrik Nystrom and Fred Gitelman were the successful declarers.

After Bertens' double, Zhao judged very well not to run to 3♥. At this vulnerability he must have figured he had every chance of a decent penalty. And right he was...in a sense. The defenders cashed two spades and two diamonds leaving South on play. At this point it was tempting for South to lead a diamond to let North discard, but that was fatal. (Either major suit works to disrupt declarer's entries and avoid letting declarer shorten himself.) On the diamond lead Karwur ruffed in hand, overtook a heart to run the ♣J and ♣10 as North ducked, then ruffed another diamond to hand and went back to a top heart for the trump coup at trick 12. Well played; 11imps back to Indonesia, leading 19-10 now.

After a couple of quiet deals the unusual notrump struck again.

Zhao's bold balance gave E/W a second chance to bid spades but they did not avail themselves of it. Instead they sold out to 3♥ and set it a trick. 4♠ is easy to make: Declarer can lose two aces and a ruff but should be able to handle the rest. Indeed, Zhuang brought home an overtrick.

Madala-Bocchi defended 4♣ here. Their auction was: (1NT)-2NT-(Pass)-3NT; (Pass)-4♣-All Pass. Bocchi led a spade. Madala won and returned the suit. Now how do you fancy declarer's chances? The easy way to make the game is to lead a club to the ten. As the cards lie South has two trump tricks but will be endplayed to lead a red suit after taking them. Declarer duly led a trump and Madala put in the jack. Now can you blame declarer for winning and exiting with a low trump? (If he plays back a high honor Madala might win from an original holding of ace-jack and lead a third spade, letting North ruff with his ♣9 and play a diamond through to Madala's king-jack. So West duly exited with a low club, letting South win cheaply and play ace and another club. Now he had a diamond winner at the end for down one.

In our featured match Cheek had stopped in 3♥ and made three while the Chinese declarer had led a heart to the jack, then played ace and another heart for down one.

Here Madala received a diamond lead to the king, a spade shift to the ace, and a second diamond. He rose with the ace, pitched his diamond on the top spade, finessed the ♥J, noting the seven, then played club, diamond ruff, club, and the top spade to pitch his last club. Now came a second diamond ruff as East pitched his last spade and this ending had been reached:

♣ Q75	♣ ---
♠ J9	♠ ---

Since the defenders' only plain suit cards were spades, declarer could safely exit with the ♥J knowing that if East won and had a spade to lead he would be able to ruff low and not be over-ruffed. Very nicely played. And note, even if East had pitched a spade on the third diamond to retain his losing club, when declarer led the fourth diamond from dummy his options would have been to pitch his club now, to reveal the position, or to ruff in. Ruffing low would give up any hope of getting a second trump trick, but East might have given declarer a losing option by ruffing high. (Declarer has to overruff and then read whether to exit with a high or low trump, depending on whether the remaining heart honor is bare or the nine is falling.) Declarer should probably get this right. If West has false-carded with the trump seven from 97x, good luck to him.

If Chang had been able to make a forcing pass of 3♣ (one should be able to, shouldn't one?) he would have had the pleasure of defending 3♦x. (The Stansbys collected 1400 from this.) As it was, neither table could collect their penalty. Both Norths led a top club and South started a signal to show two. Alas for Weichsel, using standard signals the ♣J, then the ♣5, was what he would have played from J1095. Weichsel shifted to a diamond at trick three, perhaps without any realistic expectation that this could ever give declarer a problem. Declarer won cheaply, led a spade to the queen and jack, took a club discard on a top heart, ruffed a third heart to hand, finessed in diamonds again, and was down to the ♠A754 in hand and one spade, two hearts and a diamond on the board. He led a plain card and could ruff low and exit with a trump to endplay South whatever he did. Nicely played and 12imps, since in the other room South's upside down signal at trick one had led North to continue clubs at trick three and force a second trump trick for his partner.

Terence Reese and Oswald Jacoby were amongst those most hostile to the idea of weak two-suited overcalls, claiming, with some justification, that it painted a road-map of the distribution for the opponents. We wonder what they would have thought of the idea of a weak two-suited opening bid. No doubt a deal like the one that follows would have gladdened their hearts.

Both tables declared 4♥, quietly two down. In the match between Australia 1 and ChinaJiangsu, Liu Jun declared 3NT on the auction shown above. It might have been easier to get rich by passing out the double of 3♦ (trump lead to South, top spade, heart to the jack and ace, and a second trump appears to net a minimum of 300). But on the informative auction shown Robinson led a diamond to Delivera's nine. A club finesse held, the next one lost, and back came a low diamond. Declarer won in hand, cashed his spade and heart winners, and presented East with a diamond. He could cash three diamonds but then had to concede the last three clubs to dummy.

East should have unblocked the ♦9 and ten on the first two rounds of the suit, in which case West would have had the option to win the ♦7 on the third round. But declarer has a resource.

Declarer is threatened with five top losers if he surrenders a heart while the defenders still have communications. But he advances the ♥Q, hoping for a bare jack or nine with East, and this goes to the king, ace and nine. Declarer can cash one club if he wants, pitching a heart, on which West can discard either a heart or a spade (it doesn't matter). Now declarer comes to hand with the second spade and exits with a diamond. If East wins he must surrender the game-going tricks in clubs. If West wins he has a spade to cash but he can't manage more than one heart trick.

One final variation: West actually does best to pitch a heart on the second club. Now declarer wins the diamond return and must play back a third diamond without touching the majors. If East cashes out, his partner will get squeezed in the majors while if he switches after taking one or two diamonds, declarer sets up the hearts for the ninth winner.

Both Wests led a diamond. Both declarers had to win in hand in case East had a singleton high diamond spot. Imakura crossed to a diamond and tried to duck a club to West. East won the ♣7, shifted to spades, and cashed out for down one.

Cheek led a heart to the king and a spade to the ten and jack. When the defenders returned a diamond he won in dummy and ducked a club. West overtook to play a third diamond and Cheek ran the clubs, but since there were no entries to dummy Furuta could pitch his diamond winner and let Teramoto play a heart through at the end.

In the other match Madala as South reached 3NT after showing 18-19 balanced and nothing else about his shape. He won the diamond lead and ducked a club at once. East won and instead of playing a spade through returned a diamond. Madala won and led a spade to the ten and jack. Back came a third diamond. He won and ran the clubs to produce this ending:

Normally you would avoid any grand slam that required you to locate the trump queen. So why did Peter Bertheau deliberately head for the seven level when he knew her ladyship was not in attendance?

(1) Minors or spades

Bertheau heard East bid 3♣ over the double, suggesting the desire to compete facing spade length, so when he heard his partner support spades and deny the trump queen he could visualize the play in the grand slam. He won the club lead, cashed one top spade, then crossed to a diamond to take the trump finesse and claimed his contract for a gain of 13 imps against the small slam in the other room.

In the other room Gitelman played 4♠ on the awkward heart lead, which had the effect of cutting declarer's communications with dummy. He won in dummy and led a spade to his queen and the ace. From there on a trump back would have defeated the contract by force. When Bertheau played a second heart declarer could have made the hand, but didn't.

Now please don't read any further before deciding how you would play the hand with the sight of all four hands as declarer and defender. Ready?

Say you correctly cross to hand with the ♣Q at trick two. What should you do next? If your answer is to play the ♠Q from hand, go to the top of the class. You may well ask why you need to do that rather than lead a low spade from hand to the jack. After all, what can North do but win and lead a top diamond? The answer is truly spectacular. South inserts the ♠10 on the first round, then ruffs the diamond with the ♠A and cuts loose with the ♠7, overtaken by his partner's eight. Declarer loses only two spades but must lose at least two diamonds now. If East leads the ♠Q from hand this defence fails. The ♠J in dummy will win the second trump after all of South's unblocks.

At any rate, +100 went with 500 when Cheek believed Fredin's manoeuvring and sacrificed in 5♥x, losing three trump tricks and two minor-suit aces when the defenders led and continued clubs.

The finals might have been an opportunity for both sides to showcase their talents. In fact, Italy Lavazza played just fine. Their opponents, however, must have been disappointed by their failure to play as well as they would have hoped. After 24 boards the margin had climbed to over 100 imps and though the third set was a wash Sweden conceded and saved us all further punishment.

Lavazza had completely dominated their KO matches after winning the Round Robin and had once again indicated that when they are on form no team in the world can keep pace with them.

Not that much consolation...

Is there any consolation for playing in the Swiss Teams? Maybe, if the right deal comes along. Consider the following hand as a defensive problem first (rotated 90 degrees):

When dummy comes down on partner's lead of the ♦3 it would be easy to relax. You win the ♦A and elect to return a low diamond (don't you?). Declarer ruffs high and starts to run trumps. He has eight of them. This is the position you will reach before the final trump is led. Your partner appears to have begun with hearts solid from the king and has been letting them go with gey abandon.

Declarer leads a trump and pitches a club with you still to discard. What will you let go? At the table Subhash Gupta's opponent discarded a heart, which was fatal, the full deal having been:

If you pitch a heart you leave partner in sole control of hearts, so in the three-card ending, when declarer, after cashing the ♥A, leads his last trump, West must keep one heart and thus come down to only two clubs. Dummy pitches its last heart and you are squeezed between diamonds and clubs. Had you pitched a club earlier and kept your heart guard, dummy must relinquish a guard in front of you and you come under no further pressure.
